“My approach to representing clients is to formulate a personalized strategy, in light of their particular legal needs, with a view toward maintaining their overall financial health.”

About Greg

With experience litigating complex construction and business issues, Greg has established a reputation of zealous advocacy for his clients. Dedicated and encouraging, he has successfully counseled his clients through ongoing business operations and pending litigation in the construction and real estate industries. Greg also assists the firm’s land use attorneys in appellate litigation matters.

Greg says that his ideal client is an “individual or business owner who seeks to protect their financial interests and has a clear grasp of the factual circumstances giving rise to the claim at hand.” His current clients include developers, general contractors, subcontractors, government contractors, and builders. From commercial collections to resolving a government contract or mechanic’s lien dispute, whatever the issue, Greg will provide the most suitable tactical and strategic advice.

Greg is a lover of all things sports. He is a huge Washington Redskins and Washington Nationals fan, a tee ball coach for this son’s team, and a collector of sports memorabilia.
