“I listen to what the client wants and try to effectuate the best plan to accomplish their goals.”

About Matt

A native Texan and “Golden Gloves Boxer”, Matt brings a distinctive experience to the Construction Law practice group. Having worked in the construction industry for 17+ years as a residential general contractor, he is well-versed in the construction industry. He is uniquely able to understand and analyze construction disputes from an insider’s perspective.

In addition to representing construction subcontractors and general contractors, Matt handles a variety of civil matters from business disputes to commercial collections. Prior to his construction experience, Matt also proudly served in the United States Marine Corps.

Adaptable and loyal, Matt takes a personal interest in his clients and their goals. He effectively listens to what his clients want to achieve and effectuates the best plan to accomplish their goals.

Outside of the office, Matthew enjoys spending time with his family and friends and traveling.
